Chapter 1 by Time Travelers

Backwards

Each paragraph is read in order, new paragraph means the event that happened before.

Mario ran into the last castle and there she was. Princess Peach, after all this time... I had finally found her.

I looked at my mothers anxiety pills and closed my tired eyes.

With a game controller in my hand and tears streaming, nose gushing- a mess.

I turned on the console, now back to where I was before this mess occurred.

Down the stairs and onto my couch filled with so many memories I couldn't bare to remember. The seat sunken in and worn because Id never done anything with my own damn life other than sit here and play video games.

I felt eyes on us, no me, burning holes into my skin.

I was yelling now

"Maybe everyone needs to open their eyes and see that this is who I am, this is who we are! And if they cant accept that I... am what makes you happy, then you don't need them. You are my Princess Peach, you are my happiness."

I felt myself shaking, tears were falling now. My voice cracking more than a 6th graders during puberty.

"All we need is each other to be happy... right?"

Silence

"Right!"

She was walking away now. I could not let her leave, I was not losing her. My legs felt like they were going to buckle, my chest heaved uncontrollably. I grabbed her arm.

"Olive don't leave, please."

I begged.

"Don't call me that anymore, you know it's Olivia just Stop!"

"No, you stop!"

I yelled.

"I did everything in my power for you. I threw away my friends, I threw away my family, I threw away my life... For you Olive, and I earned every damn right to call you that."
